THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT TO THE NORTH.

From yesterday's dispatches, it will be seen that the President has resolved to make a visit to the Northern instead of to the Southern States.

This is well enough perhaps; for while the Southern people are willing to treat the President of the United States with decent respect and becoming courtesy, they are not in a frame of mind now to extend overtures of special greetings to a man who stands before the public as the representative of a political party whose corruptions and usurpations find no parallel in the annals of any country.

The Northern people, because they do not feel so deeply the paralyzing effects of Radical tyranny, can with more propriety welcome and fetter our President; but until Grant shows a kinder and more generous policy towards the Southern States, he can very well afford to confine his pleasure trips to the North without causing us to feel any slight or mortification.

While poor Louisiana is crushed beneath the weight of oppression and tyranny—while Federal bayonets are thrust at the throats of her people, to keep them in subjection to a conspiracy against the laws and Constitution of the country, we think the President has acted wisely in indefinitely postponing his Southern tour.

The people of New Orleans would not welcome him with as much cordiality and enthusiasm as would the constituents of Schuyler Colfax, at East Bend, Indiana. The President's letter endorsing Colfax, which was read to the public by that smiling individual when he returned home and addressed an immense reception meeting, assembled to express their undiminished confidence in Colfax's honesty and purity of character, will doubtless insure him a warm greeting and a hearty hand-shaking by the East Benders. His appointment of Casey as Collector of Customs at New Orleans, and his determination to sustain at all hazards, the Kellogg conspiracy in Louisiana, would not justify him in expecting at the hands of the people of New Orleans similar demonstrations in his honor.

[We can not shut our eyes to the fact that the Norfolk Journal—a "Welcome, thrice welcome, Eliza!" We had not the heart to ask the people of the South, either as a matter of policy or of principle, to rejoice and be glad over the contemplated Southern tour of the President.

We despise the principles which govern the Radical party. We despise the corruption which rises with the stench of rottenness along the highways and by ways of the Republic. We see nothing in the President's official career worthy of special commendation. His personal character aside from his politics does not challenge our admiration or reverence. While we respect the position of Chief Magistrate of the nation, we do not think the present incumbent has conferred any honor on the office by any display of statesmanship, fitness or patriotism.

We have no personal ill-will towards the President of the United States, nor do we wage a capacious opposition to his Administration for party capital. When he does an act which can conscientiously approve we will endorse him and give him credit therefor. But we are opposed to the party he represents. We are opposed to the general policy that has characterized his Administration. We are opposed to Radicalism in all its forms, and we do not propose to compromise with tyranny and outrage by honoring an individual who upholds and sustains the wrong.

A CONFIRMATION THAT WAS NOT A CONFIRMATION.

There was great surprise expressed in this City by the Radicals, when the intelligence was flashed here that the nomination of C. L. Harris, for Collector for this District, was re-confirmed the day the Senate adjourned.

It was generally understood among them that Harris' name had been withdrawn, after the re-consideration of the vote in the Senate when he was first confirmed. Indeed it was so stated by the Press dispatches.

In the hurry of business at the close of the session, it seems that the Senate lost sight of the fact that Harris' name had been withdrawn by the President. Harris' re-confirmation, therefore, was an error on the part of the Senate.

This curious state of affairs gave rise to much speculation at the time among the respective friends of Harris and Young, and the telegraphic wires were used quite freely to ascertain the true situation at Washington City. The answers by telegrams were as contradictory as the Associated Press dispatches. One would state that Harris had been re-confirmed. Another that it was a mistake—that the Senate had taken no action in the premises. Another still, that although Harris had been re-confirmed, yet it was the Senate's mistake and that Young would hold the place.

It turns out to be the fact that there was a re-confirmation of Harris' appointment, but the President having withdrawn his name, it is contended that the re-confirmation was a nullity, and that therefore Young retains his position.

The President has before exercised the power of withdrawing a name from the Senate, after the motion to reconsider a nomination has been carried. This was done in the case of the notorious Bergin, of Kirk notoriety, who was nominated by the President for some foreign mission.

Harris' only hope now is by a resort to the Courts, on the ground that his confirmation, like an election, confers vested rights which cannot be taken away by the simple withdrawal of his name by the President.

A legal question arises: Has the President of the United States, without the consent of the Senate, the power to withdraw a nomination which has been confirmed by that body, but which has been re-considered and is still pending?

The fact that the President has done so heretofore does not decide the legal aspects of the case, but may be a precedent in violation of law.

The better opinion seems to be, however, that the reconsideration of a confirmation reverts the power of appointment to the President, and if the name of an appointee is withdrawn, a subsequent re-confirmation is in fact no confirmation at all, as there was no nomination before the Senate, and therefore it could not legally take any action in the premises.

In that view of the case, Young will remain Collector for this District for the present.

THE GOLDSBORO BAR.

The Goldsboro Messenger of the 24th ult., contains short sketches of the members of the Goldsboro bar, who for talent and ability the Editor thinks are unsurpassed by those of any bar in the State.

The following gentlemen of the legal fraternity are mentioned in the order of their names: Hon. W. T. Dortch, Geo. V. Strong, W. T. Faircloth and H. F. Grainger, Esqs., Capt. Swift Galloway and W. S. Morisey, S. W. Isler, S. A. Thompson, A. K. Smedes and Isaac F. Dortch, Esqs.

We have only space for the following extracts from the article:

"Seated to the left of the Bench and immediately in front of the jury box, sits the HON. W. T. DORTCH, old in experience but full of vigor and apparently as young in appearance as he looked occupying the same seat years ago; with full dark beard, and his face wholly unshaven. He is one of our best lawyers.

To the people of North Carolina, Mr. Dortch is no stranger. As an advocate he is endowed with the happy faculty of quick conception, so important to every lawyer, and correct understanding of the law. He has acquired a familiar acquaintance with jurisprudence, which accounts for his having been so remarkably successful. As a speaker, when arguing before a jury, he is brief, at the same time conveying so an irresistible force of statements that it is difficult for a jury to efface its effects from their minds.

Mr. Dortch was born in Nash county, August 23d, 1824; is a son of the late Wm. Dortch, Esq., so well known in that section. He received his education in Bingham's School at Hillsboro, read law at Halifax under Hon. B. F. Moore, was licensed to practice in January, 1844, and when scarcely twenty years of age, was called to the position of county Solicitor for Nash. In 1849, he removed to Goldsboro, and in a short time became one of our most prominent lawyers.

Since his residence here he has filled the office of County Solicitor; was elected to the Legislature in which capacity he served the people of Wayne from 1852 to 1856, one two years term excepted. He had also the honor to be chosen speaker of the H. use for three sessions. On the organization of the Confederate States Congress, Mr. Dortch, was elected one of its Senators from this State, which position he retained during the existence of that government.

In 1871 he was again nominated by the Conservatives of Wayne to represent them in the proposed convention, and he made a most vigorous canvass, winning many votes for that so unpopular position.

Recently he has associated with him in the practice of his profession his son, Isaac F., under the firm of W. T. Dortch & Son.

Geo. V. STRONG, Esq.,

Sitting beside Mr. Dortch we observed our friend and former townsman Geo. V. Strong, Esq., whose career as a distinguished lawyer renders further introduction wholly unnecessary. He resides at present in Raleigh, where he is associated in the practice of law with Hon. W. N. H. Smith.

Mr. Strong was born in the county of Sampson, on the 7th day of May 1827, is a son of the late Dr. Salmon Strong. He completed his education at the University of North Carolina where he graduated with first distinction in 1845, and studied law under the late George W. Mordecai, Esq.

He came to Goldsboro in November 1850, and shortly afterwards became the editor of the Goldsboro Telegraph, which paper he published for nearly two years, devoting his attention during that time to the study of law. On the 31st day of December, 1852, he obtained license to practice.

During his residence in Goldsboro Mr. Strong filled with credit several offices of importance. He was Clerk and Master in Equity for the county, and also a member of the Convention of 1861; afterwards Confederate States District Attorney. In 1868 he became the Conservative candidate for Judge in this District, but was defeated by C. R. Thomas. On January 1, 1871, he entered into a partnership with Ex-Gov. Thomas Bragg, and moved his family to Raleigh in April of the same year.

As a lawyer Mr. Strong has probably no superior in the State, he ranks among the best. He is also a great favorite with both clients and judges; and all who know him do readily admit that he is not only a man of deep study, possessing great oratorical powers, but an indefatigable worker, thoroughly acquainted with jurisprudence, and our Statute law in all its phases.

He is ever courteous in manners and precise in his language, and thoroughly exemplifies Thackeray's model of a gentleman.

Mr. Strong's masterly effort is that before the Federal Judge at Greensboro, and also before the Legislative committee in behalf of the State's interest in the Western Railroad. We understand that his Excellency, Gov. Caldwell, admits that but for Mr. Strong's powerful effort that road would have been sacrificed.

A. K. SMEDES, Esq.

Among the youngest members of our Bar is our friend Mr. A. K. Smedes, at present associated with the law firm of Smith, Strong & Co., (late Bragg, Strong & Co.). He is in charge of their Branch office in this place.

Mr. Smedes was born in Raleigh, July 24th, 1845, is the son of Rev. Albert Smedes, of that city. He was educated at St. James College in Maryland, and at Chapel Hill, in this State; read law under H. H. Battle, Jr., and was licensed in 1868. He located in Goldsboro in 1870, and became associated with Mr. Strong. His suavity of manners, keen perception, business tact and professional ability open up to him a promising future.

ISAAC F. DORTCH, Esq.

is the youngest member of our Bar, was born August 23rd, 1845 is a son of Hon. W. T. Dortch, with whom he is at present associated in the practice of law. He was a student of the Washington Law University, in Virginia, until compelled by sickness to go to the University of Georgia where he graduated with high honors in June, 1871. Shortly after his return home he went to Hillsboro Hill and read law under Chief-Justice Pearson, and was admitted to the Bar on June 3rd, 1872; having passed the examination with commendable distinction, and being familiar with all the mysteries and intricacies of the profession, and possessing that peculiar diversity of talent that never fails to win honors of the Bar. We predict for him a brilliant future.

The export of rails from Great Britain to the United States for the month of February was 21,063 tons, against 53,131 tons in February, 1872—a decrease of 32,068 tons. The total shipments from Great Britain to all countries during the month were but 41,815 tons, against 71,361 tons in a corresponding time last year. The decrease is generally less, but the shipments to the United States are very largely reduced.

A Pennsylvania woman, who leaped upward to hang an article of clothing upon a hook in the ceiling of her kitchen, caught a ring on one of her fingers in the hook, and hung there, her feet not touching the floor. Her cries brought assistance, and she was released painfully wrenched but not seriously injured.

On the night of the 29th inst., Sheriff Lesner, of Norfolk county, attempted to arrest a negro swindler named Joe Bradley on the suburbs of Norfolk. Bradley resisted and assaulted the officer, when he was shot through the head and instantly killed.

A LAND LUBBER.

BY TERENCE.

O, bury me not 'neath old ocean's wave,
Whose wild billows foam and swell;
Nay, I'd much prefer for my quiet grave
To be in some sylvan dell.
You may if you choose plant a rosebush near,
With a strong iron railing around;
And, friends, if you love me, keep in repair
The said iron railing and mound.

Some Baptist had shell, whose views are marine,
May grave a cold bed 'neath the deep,
But give me the sword with its carpet of green
And there with my kind let me sleep.
No charms have for me the gorgeous caves,
Which Neptune has graciously planned;
I prefer to the harp of the musical waves,
The chirruping cricket of land.

I'd have my mute home remote from the sea,
Where the cat-bird, the thrush and the lark
May come, and may sing from some corn-
stalk or tree,
Then, when the morn'g sun is bright,
Yes, then let me rest in silence profound,
Released from earth's evils and pain;
Then let me sleep undisturbed by a sound,
Which never can wake me again.

Then, bury me not where Mermaids
roam,
Where the tad-poles sport and make love;
I would much prefer for my last abode
To be where I'm mentioned above,
And as said, ye may plant a rosebush near,
With a fence or a railing around;
And here I enjoin, ye keep in repair
Both the said fencing and mound.

A Strange Career—Woman of Many Husbands.

One of the strangest careers of modern times has just terminated in the death of Lady Ellenborough at Damascus. Forty years ago she was one of the most noted women in Europe, and her residence in the East has long been a sort of scandalous romance. The daughter of the late Admiral Sir Henry Digby, beautiful, witty and rich, she married in 1824 the Earl of Ellenborough, who was afterward Governor-General of India, and who at that time was one of the most brilliant men of the day. She was about seventeen years of age at the time of her marriage, and Ellenborough, who was a widower, was thirty-four. They lived together some six years, and her dissolute conduct was a cause of scandal for some time previous to the catastrophe of her elopement with Prince Felix Schwarzenberg, a celebrated rove, then Austrian Minister in London. The event caused an immense sensation in the world of aristocracy and fashion. Ellenborough procured a divorce from Parliament, and never married again;
but his runaway wife soon separated from Schwarzenberg, and in 1832 married Baron Venningen, a Bavarian. Tiring of him presently, and with great wealth and personal fascinations
having little difficulty in procuring divorces under the easy laws of Germany, she was married in succession to five other individuals;
but as none of these unions met her expectations, they were all dissolved after a short duration. In 1848 she was living in Athens with her eighth husband, a Greek colonel, Count Theodoraki; but without waiting to become a widow
she had this marriage also dissolved, and set out for the Levant. During a journey from Beyrout to Damascus, where she had a new affinity in the person of an Arab camel driver, known as Sheikh Abdul, whom she married after the Arab fashion, and who was the ninth and last of her conjugal partners. For a whole year she accompanied him on his journeys between Beyrout and Babylon, faithfully fulfilling all the duties of a camel driver's wife, even to milking the camels. Tiring of this nomadic life, she built for herself a charming palace in Damascus, where she has since lived in her own style, a great object of curiosity to all European travelers. Abdul, continuing in business as a camel driver, was always hospitably entertained by her whenever he came to the place. And now she is dead, having completed nearly three-score and ten years, leaving a colossal fortune to her relatives of the Digby family in England, and a memory of warning and of shame.
